When Khrushchev Looks Good

Nikita Khrushchev never looked so good to Western eyes as he did for a few minutes last Tuesday while a rumor of his death was circulating.

What added up to a grossly unprofessional botch by obscure figures in a couple of Asiatic news agencies caused the U.S. stock market to skid and hearts to skip a beat in chancellories all over the world.

Khrushchev has been so ebulliently alive that even with his 70th birthday imminent on April 26 his eventual death had not been given more than a passing thought.

But at the chill moment when a death rumor was spreading it became plain that in the heart and mind of this round little man resides all hope of carrying on a working agreement with the Soviet Uniona live-and-let-live understanding.

WITH KHRUSHCHEV gone, old-line Communists inside Russia would make another bid for ascendancy. The split with the Chinese People's Republic would be more likely to narrow than to widen. There would be a no-holds-barred struggle for power and a new shuffle in the Communist bloc.

Nothing in the Soviet government structure is provided to ease a transfer of power from one leader to another, the way it is provided in the United States. The opposite is bound to happen in Russia: there must be a contest of strength among the survivors. The Communists want it that way. Struggling is the essence of their creed-but always inside a monolithic political party.

But Nikita Khrushchev is not dead; therefore, long live Nikita Khrushchev. He has been so much better than Joseph Stalin that by comparison he has been

Poor Hollywood

With millions of others, many of them as ignorant as I am about modern movies, we watched the big annual blast of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences Tuesday night. We made two mistakes.

The first was to go to bed to watch the show on the little TV set in the bedroom. The second was to become involved in a show that was going to last beyond our bedtime. It wasn't that good.

The lady I watch TV shows in bed with conked out early.

I stayed awake, in a state of drowsiness punctuated only briefly by the artistry of Sammy Davis Jr. - and I would have missed even that solitary high point in a dreary evening if Sammy's crack about the NAACP hadn't elicited a spatter of laughter that roused me.

This was a dreary exhibition. It gave the impression of something the people involved in it were doing from a sense of duty. Everybody was grimly resigned to going through with it and keeping a stiff upper lip — and it showed.

Show biz took a pasting.

NEXT MORNING when I was asked how it all came out, I was unable to remember much about it. "Tom Jones" I could remember. I could remember the fine Negro actor, Sidney Poitier, who won the best actor award. As for the rest of what went on, I couldn't have cared less.

This bothers me. One of two things must be wrong, or maybe it's a little of both. Either the glitter has been rubbed off the movies, or my own interest in the glamorous people who formerly symbolized the movie industry has vanished - or both.

But even if it's both, the greater factor would be the movies' loss of glamor. As the master of ceremonies, Jack Lemmon said, motion pictures have become an international industry. And as another participant, old-timer Edward G. Robinson

Union Head Airs Rail Crisis Tactics

By Victor Riesel

Behind the railroad crisis is a virtually unknown labor leader a 6-foot, graying, roundfaced, quick smiling Texan who is president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, the largest of the rail unions. His name is Charles Luna and his strategy is that of king Victor Riesel coal," John L. Lewis: Don't deal with anyone but the President of the U.S.

When I dined with Luna, not too long before the crisis broke out, he vividly and frankly disclosed his tactics for an assault on the nation's railroads in an effort to beat them and end their 41/2-year-old battle. He said he would call strikes on road after road.

He asserted he would not wait until after the presidential election, because, "From then on out we rail union leaders will be dead for four more years and will get no help from the LUNA TOLD ME that the rail strike could best be settled by a national strike.

"I'm for it," he added, "because it would last only three or four days. It won't really hurt the country and President Johnson would have to let us bargain with each railroad individually. It's the only way. Then they'll know we're serious."

That's the way Luna played it. Before his union and three other on-train brotherhoods struck the Illinois Central Luna left his Cleveland headquarters.

When the strike hit a sleeping country Luna was at the Hotel Radisson in Minneapolis. Since this move raised the threat of a nationwide stoppage, he was well aware that President Johnson and Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz would want him in Washington immediately. So he went to Winnepeg, Canada.

Meanwhile Wirtz notified President Johnson. During a White House conference which followed shortly thereafter the President in graphic and emphatic language said he did not want to take the strike crisis to Congress. So they summoned the heads of the rail operating brotherhoods and eight railroad railroad company presidents to an emergency 8 a.m. peace parley in Wirtz' office - just 28 hours before what was, in effect, the strike deadline.

THESE EIGHT presidents make up the administrative committee of the roads' joint bargaining group known as the National Railway Labor Conference. They have absolute authority to make a settlement for the entire industry. But only two union chiefs turned up - Roy Davidson, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and Neil Speirs, president of the Switchmen's Union of North America.

Neither of them had the authority to speak for the other unions. They especially could not speak for Luna. But they did sit until past 3 a.m. Then they set another session for 10 a.m. Still no Luna. Then for 11:30. But he was working his way down from Winnepeg while the country in general and President Johnson in particular did a fast burn.

Regardless of what is developing now, there will be no final settlement with Luna's union for a long time. His strategy calls for a continuing series of delaying actions.

THIS STARTED last July when he single-handedly rejected John Kennedy's request that the unions permit Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg to arbitrate the dispute, which involved some 750,000 men and an annual payroll of $4.63 bil-

Two hours before meeting time, Wirtz telephoned all concerned. He was disgusted. During the night Luna had killed the agreement. Then Luna hit on the "selec tactics until the fall of 1965. If Luna is right, all agreements made during the two years' life of the law are worthless. The railroads will have to rehire all those they laid off. In other words, the feud will be back where it began in 1959. If the railroads and the White House don't see it that way, Luna says his union will strike electrified mankind with its first space flight. He was aloft for 108 minutes orbiting the earth and when he touched down, the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist party announced triumphantly:

"Our country has surpassed all states of the world."

Tremendous effort was made on both sides of the Atlantic since that famous first flight by Maj. Yuri Gagarin. But the cost is enormous and there is no end Gagarin and the other cosmonauts and astronauts have become world figures. The Soviet cosmonauts especially have traveled widely and have shown they can handle a microphone as well as a control stick.

A silvery metal pylon, bearing a portrait of Gagarin in his space helmet and wrought from white metal symbolizing the infinity of space, will be constructed in a garden on Lenin

But a giant question looms on the nature of the Soviet space

Undoubtedly, the next big effort will be a rendezvous in space involving two or more space ships. During the Autumn 1962 flight of Andrian Nikolayev and Pavel Popovich, their two ships were about three miles apart but did not attempt a rendezvous.

The rendezvous operation is essential as the first step in the building of a space station or platform. The technical difficulties are enormous.

Since the Soviet Union launched the first satellite on October of 1957, no announcement has ever been given in advance of a Soviet space shot. Often, however, Western correspondents in Moscow learn from the Soviet Party Switch Eyed In Presidential Election anti-Goldwater sentiment and It looks as if the "crossover" an anti - Rockefeller attitude. Groups holding these viewpoints vote will decide the next presidential election. There are many Republicans who would like would get a very substantial number of such Republicans. As a matter of fact, many Republicans say frankly that, if the nomination doesn't go to Goldwater - who, they think, articulates a real opposition to the policies of the Kennedy-Johnson administration - they would rather vote for a Johnson-Humphrey ticket or stay at home on Election Day. Between now and the Republican convention in San Francisco in July, the aspirants for the Republican nomination may become more challenging in their speeches of criticism and win votes by the specific points they make.

To late there has been little dent made by the speeches of the Republican candidates, with the exception of Goldwater. He. however, has managed to alienate that segment of the Republican party which has often Leen termed as "Me-Too Republicanism.

Whether it is in the domain of foreign or domestic policies, the Republicans in general have waged a weak campaign. Certainly the potential candidates have not as yet produced that mood among the voters which would indicate a readiness to change administrations no matter which Republican is

A DARK HORSE or a socalled compromise candidate who hasn't been active in seeking the nomination normally has little chance to win if the country is relatively satisfied with the incumbent administration.

Candidates who have centered their attention on a specific issue which involves national discontent usually have the best chance of winning a nomination and a subsequent election.

To date none of the Republican candidates has made a persuasive case for a change of administration, and each appears to be merely reflecting a personal ambition for high office whether he happens to be an active candidate or is slyly acquiescing in the 'draft' idea-

Nobody at this time can be sure of the extent of the "crossnational discontent, and the election campaign this year could conceivably be one in which the opposition to "civil rights," for instance, in the North and South could defeat a Johnson-Kennedy ticket.

The reaction of the country will not be known until after this legislation is passed, which may not be until just before the national conventions are journalists to be on the alert.

As such, the nature of the next Soviet space effort is pure speculation. Space articles appear in the Soviet press from one day to the next, but much of what appears is too general for realistic prediction.

One minor clue, however, appeared recently when the Soviet news agency Tass reported that Soviet scientists had proven experimentally that human beings can live for prolonged periods of time under higher-than-normal pressure when nitrogen in the air is replaced with helium. Significantly, the story did not appear in any Soviet newspaper but only on Tass' Englishlanguage service for foreign correspondents.

How far along Soviet scientists are toward laying the groundwork for the next Soviet space shot is unknown. The names of the future cosmonauts remain a secret, and so does the name of the chief designer, although he has attended a number of public ceremonies.

Will the day come when Westerners will be able to watch Soviet space launchings as in the West? Certainly, say the cosmonauts. As soon as there is general and complete disarmament.

SPACE AGE MEDICINE WILL EFFECT YOU

nere are nearly as many physicians and medical researchers involved in the flight of an astronaut as there are engineers and technicians. The effect on the astronaut's body is studied very closely and the data collected is already being used in the development of new and more effective medicines.

Someday soon we will start to get these new medicines in our pharmacy and physicians will be writing prescriptions for them. When we see a spectacular space feat we know that it also represents a big step in the conquest of disease and the maintenance of good health.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we com-

Blue Norther, A Filly. May Enter Derby Run

Associated Press Sports Writer LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - If trainer Wally Dunn can come up with a good excuse, his filly Blue Norther will become only the second of her sex in the past 19 years to run in the Kentucky Folks around the race track just muffled their chuckles in the past when Dunn talked of sending the powerful filly in the rugged run for the roses. But it's Dunn who's doing all the laughing now.

Blue Norther has won all four starts this year. Her last victory was the $25,150 Ashland Stakes at Keeneland. She will most likely get her first chance at the name colts in the 11/2 mile Blue Grass Stakes April 23.

Dunn has said the daughter of Windy City II-Perfect Gem, by Royal Gem II, will go in the Blue Grass, the last distance prep for the Derby, if the run for the roses co-favorite Hill

Rise does not go.
It's not that Dunn is avoiding Hill Rise. It's just that he wants jockey Willie Shoemaker in the frons. If Hill Rise goes, the Shoe will ride him. Shoemaker says that Blue Norther is the best filly he has ever ridden. The way things stack up presently, Hill Rise will go postward in the seven-furlong Fore-runner at Keeneland Friday and will bypass the Blue Grass in favor of the Derby Trial.

But the Blue Grass would still give Dunn and owner Mrs. W.R. Hawn a chance to see how good Blue Norther is. Northern Dancer, co-favorite with Hill Rise for Derby honors, is considered a definite starter in the Blue

Measuring Of Wheat Urged For Allotment

Under regulations governing the 1964 wheat allotment program, farmers are urged to have their wheat measured if history credit for future allot-

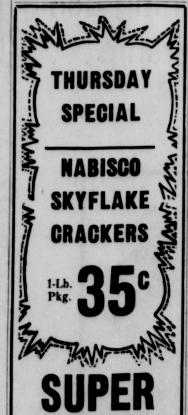

Even though a wheat producer returns his wheat card showing less wheat planted than the farm allotment he still must have his wheat measured to obtain history credit. In these cases if the wheat is actually found to be within the allotment he will then also be eligible for price-support on wheat, according to the Beaver County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service at Beaver.

The Pennsylvania ASCS issued an appeal for farmers to cooperate in having their wheat measured, particularly where a farmer has under-planted his 1964 allotment. Farmers who desire to have their wheat measured must notify the county ASCS office by no later than the disposition date established for the county.

DIRECTIONS IF YOU HAVE A WATCH -

-Junior Editors Quiz on-

QUESTION: How can one find direction without a compass? * *

ANSWER: A compass shows north, south, east, west and the various points between and so helps us find our way in case we don't recognize our surroundings. There are several ways to find these directions without a compass. If you have a watch and the sun is shining, use the method shown in the part of the picture. Hold a match or thin stick against the edge of the watch. Now move the watch around until the hour hand lies along the same line as the shadow or the stick. Halfway between the shadow and the number 12 will show the direction south. With this determinded, it is easy to see that north lies just opporite south on the other side of the watch, and then you can figure east and west. Without a watch, use the method the two little girls are demonstrating. If the sun isn't shining, you can often find north by studying moss growing on tree trunks, for this is thickest on the side of trees. At night, look for the familar big group of stars, the Big Dipper, which looks like a large bent handle with a dipper on the end. The last two stars on the outside of the dipper point toward the Pole Star, the one star which stays in place as the others revolve around it. This star always shows the north ways shows the north.

FOR YOU TO DO: Try out each one of the direction finding methods we have mentioned and be sure you understand them. If you ever did get lost, they might prove of very great
